According to section 6 of the Legal Practitioners' Regln pleaders are entitled to appear in civil courts in [redacted] district & in Criminal courts other than the High Courts.

Rule 102 B (3) of the Land Revenue Code Rules enjoins that only advocates should appear before Joint

In regard to Police license appeal & Explosive license appeal cases there is no rule regarding this point either in the Police Regln or the Police Manual

The intention of the rule 102-B. (3) in the Land Revenue Code Rules seems to be that pleaders should not appear before Joint in any appeal or cases.

The Law section may however be consulted further on this point of approval

It is only in Civil and Criminal Courts that an advocate or pleader has a right to appear under the Legal Practitioners Regulation this appearance in Revenue Courts and before other authorities are not as a matter of Statutory right but only regulated by means of rules or other orders If there is no rule or order then he can appear only with permission & not otherwise

The principle laid down in rule 102 B of the Land Revenue Rules is of general application and Govt ca refuse to permit a pleader from appearing before them in any case

Though Rule 102 B give Land Revenue Rules applies strictly to Revenue it indicates the class of legal practitioners whom the Govt will allow to plead before them Since Govt is the highest appellate authority in Revenue & executive matters it is meet that only Advocates be granted the privilege of audience
